Thomas W. Keene in Macbeth.

Thomas W. Keene, who is to appear before the people of Springfield at Black's opera hours. October 3d, in his spectacular play Macbeth, has been drawing immense houses wherever he has played. His Macbeth is the ruest representation of the Shaksperian character that could possibly be. He does not act his part, he gets into the body and bones of the role and is the living, breathing, scheming, conrageous, ambitious and bloody Thane of Cawdor, Mr. Keene should be ranked among the leading tragedians of the day, and a rare treat is in store for the theater patrons of this city. The following is from the St. Louis Republican:

businstic character. The house was crowded. He played Mucbeth, a part in which he has been ranked second to none in the country. His conception of the part differs slightly rom tradition, but here and there he has re-vived some now obsolete readings with excellent taste, judgment, and effect. Viewing the embodiment altogether, it was a symmetrical and a thrilling one, and saturatedas a personation of Macbeth ought to be with the haunting dread of awful spirituality. Keene's Macbeth when first seen goes torth spiritual intiniation of the preordained doom f horror and suin, which marks it off from among living men. It was the haunted men of Shakespeare's tragedy, the image of awe and dread and fiend-driven virtue which is drawn in the text. It would be difficult to mark the highest point to which his performance attained. In the scene of the murder is became both terrible and pitcous; in the banuet scene it was thrilling and terrible, and n the combat he fought like a warrior hedged around by enemies and driven into a corner. Macbeth would give him fame f he never played snother role as long as he Republicans, Attention ! The following is a true copy of an article which appeared in the morning issue of the Grong-Resonance of October 1st, 84: "The excursion train from this city did not reach bayton until 9 o'clock, nearly three hours a ter the Short Line Rail Road Campany agreed to get them there. The republican managers are very indignant over this breach of contract and say that it is the second or third time it has been done by this saw fow! When the train for Springfield was about to sulf out it was noticed that instead of the thirty-hree cars which went down there were only about half that number to . This created much dissatisfaction which was increased ten fold when the Glee Club attempted to reserve two of these cars and let the remaining thousands occupy the seats in the other cars or stand up. There was an attempt to do this by calling up the tilee Club men, the order being called them to go to the Phillips house. The scheme worked very well with some, but others saw through it and forced their way into these two cars. The doors of these cars were broken open torcibly, however, and the tums of the Glee Club. The train arrived here about 2 o'clock, nearly two hours later than expected. Still another, taken from the GLOBE-REPUBLIC of Oct. 2nd, 1884; "The Plug Hat Brigade secured four L. B. The Plug Hat Brigade speak with great bitterness of the course of the C., .. C. & I agent in the matter, charging that to all purchasers of excursion tickets he said they were entitled to seats, wherever they ould get them. Then came another performance upon the part of the C., C., C. & I. local management, which was nothing less than an octrage. In getting up its excursion it had availed itself of all the republican machinery and of the republican press to keep it along, but the success of the the tickets sold it seemed to have no concern whatsoever in carrying out its part of the contract. Instead of escorting the Blaine train down, with but an interval of fifteen minutes between the two as had been agreed upon, it did not start until very late and did not land its party in Dayton until 9 o'clock.

On the excursion train going to Dayton there were thirty-three cars. Having carried the people there with round-trip tickets already purchased, it seemed to be a matter of ind fference to the railway management what shape they got home again, so stend of running back the thirtyinstead of running back the thirty-three cars which they took down they ran back but little more than half that number. Here was the direct cause of the culminating trouble. The Ping Hat Brigade, knowing that in consequence of the shameful performance of the railway com-Mr. Keene appeared last night at the Opera pany curs were scarce were very willing to share m with the Glee club. Such are the res acts as we get at them by the most painstaking inquiry as to the local management of the excursion. We hope it has taught our people a lesson. It is certainly in place to state in connection herewith that the notice in this morning's saue of the Glore-Resculte, ca few lies nailed," is simply an expression of the writer, who would lie when the truth would answer the better purpose? Any one familiar with the streets of Cincinnati can very readiy see that the difference in distance, taking Walnut street as a dividing center, is but "three squares," and while the Pan Handle land their people within three squares of Fourth street, Cincinnati, it is high and dry, and it is not the bottom of a filthy, mucky, foul bed of a canal. The special train which will leave Springfield at 8 o'clock s. m., railroad time, will go through solid without a change, and arrive in Cincinnati at 10:45 s n , giving ample time to view the parade, landing people within three squares of Fourth street, Cincinnati, and not in the suburbs, a stated by the writer of the article of this morning's issue. Caucasian vs. Mongolian.

Shall the "Coming Man" be Chinese or American? This is the rising question of the age which the 20th century must and will answer. The first notes of the long bartle bave been heard already in congress and upon the Pacific Coast and in Australia. The battle is not with the poor, ignorant "coolie" but with his rich, educated master, the Mongolian-born-merchant. An Important Invention. The very rapidly increasing demand for improved bicycles and tricycles has led many of the most noted inventors into this channel of experimental work. Amos Hoak, of 153 West Main street, has just received patents on a new machine which promises to meet a rapid sale and general popularity. His tricycle, as it may properly be called, is operated and propelled by he hands, although the same principle may be applied to treadle motion as well as it is rotary in its action. In Mr. Hoak's machine the power is applied directly to the driving wheels. The entire appliance is simple and very desirable. It cannot be gotten out of order. It is claimed that this new tricycle can, in point o speed, disance eng three-wheeled machine now made under the same conditions, as it has three times the driving power of any of there. On an or-dinary roadway the Hoak machine can rasily be propelled with one hand and the comfirtable and large seat provided makes rioing upon it a fascinating pleasure The sest used would be impractical on a treading machine owing to its s.ze, and this feature will make the Hoak tricycle very popular with lady riders. Mr. Hoak is now making arrangements for the manufacture of his tricycles and will probably form a Dayton; Hon. Geo.
